ZOO'S GUIDE TO ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW, WATCH & LISTEN TO THIS WEEK!

Rita makes Ibiza hotter right now!

Your Hot 101 winner couldn't resist a holiday abroad and, like you, we can't help but admire her sensational bikini bod!

ZOO's hottest lady on the planet might have once provoked 400 complaints after a cleavage-tastic appearance on The One Show, but you won't hear any grumbles following her latest booby baring antics in Ibiza.

Lovely Londoner Rita was partying it up on the White Isle after a busy few weeks which saw her split from her fella and take the crown as ZOO's Hot 101 winner. So what better way to get over your heartache than spending time with your → topless pals and sunbathing in a two-piece smaller than a napkin?

The newly single star looked so jaw-droppingly gorgeous, we simply had to dedicate six revealing pages to show you just how remarkable she looks. But if this still isn't enough, you've only got to wait a handful of days until The X Factor returns to our screens, along with raunchy Rita as the show's naughty new judge.

However, the Kosovo-born babe's TV return isn't even the best news: when the Body On Me singer was asked if she was planning any more of her infamous revealing outfits or nip slips, she replied: "Probably, but only on the live shows so I can pretend it was an accident!"

Now, if that's not an excuse to put up with whatever ridiculous Wagner or Jedward the show rolls out this year, then quite frankly we have no idea what is!

REAL-LIFE BAT BOAT UNCOVERED!

Get an eyeful of this menacing new high-speed stealth interceptor, the Barracuda, developed over in Ireland. ZOO spoke to the man behind the machine to find out more...

It may share all the physical traits of Batman's new motorboat, but this crafty cruiser is in fact a state-of-the-art new mini warship, decked out with more firepower than Alastair Cook's bowling attack.

"We feel it's the ultimate military and law enforcement vessel around," explained its creator Frank Kowalski.

And, with two twinned 600bhp engines, night vision, lightweight Kevlar to protect the crew, stealth technology and plenty of weapons, it's hard to argue with him.

"People keep telling me it looks like Batman's boat, but I think it's something Bond would use to tear up the Thames," says Kowalski. "There's no ejector seat though, so I'm not sure if that would put him off!"

It may not, but we got Kowalski to tell us about the Barracuda's other specs...

HI-TECH CONTROLS!

ON-BOARD TECH!

"Wi-Fi, satellite links, touchscreen monitors and it's even got a joystick to control the 50-calibre gun at the front. It's a bit like a videogame in some ways. There's no iPhone dock though, just in case you're wondering. We don't get that many requests from people wanting to play Ride Of The Valkyries while on patrol!"

FIREPOWER!

"For starters, it's got a concealed 50-calibre machine gun that can be worked via remote control. It's gyroscopically stabilised so it stays level no matter what choppy water we get into. Also on board there's a non-lethal Hyperspike H18 sonic weapon. This is a focused soundwave for close range that emits a very high frequency and a very painful sound."

CONCEALED WEAPONS!

STEALTH!

"We use a number of radar-absorbing materials that make it pretty invisible. Although at a certain distance stealth goes out the window, because you'll see it once you get within visual range of the Barracuda. But it's so fast it'll catch you anyway."

THE MAN BEHIND BARRACUDA!

A GAME YOU CAN'T REFUSE!

The original and best mafioso game in the business is back after a five-year hiatus – and it looks better than a party at Tony Montana's

FIRST LOOK!

Most of the titles to feature at this year's Gamescom convention in Cologne were familiar to us weeks ago, but 2K Games had a little surprise up its sleeve; a third entry in its hugely popular Mafia series.

We were intrigued, so made a few people sing like canaries until we found out everything you could possibly want to know. And unless you fancy sleeping with the fishes, we suggest you give it a read...

It's no GTA clone

It might have all the hallmarks of a 1960s era Grand Theft Auto, but Mafia's top execs have been quick to distance themselves from that mantle, calling it "a completely different experience". And they're right! Even subtle changes to the cars make this unique: for example, the in-car radio has a nifty analogue dial to change stations, plus you can use your wheels to intimidate and interrogate informants you want to make talk, simply by driving like a madman.

Not quite the Big Easy...

Everything is set in a re-imagined New Orleans in 1968, where the Italian mob controls the city. Corrupt police and politicians line their pockets and turn a blind eye but, unlike previous games, you're not controlling the Italians. You're working against them as a member of the Black Mob, seeking revenge after they slaughtered your “family”.

1960s NEW ORLEANS!

DRIVE-BY GANG WARFARE!

CORRUPT COPS!

It's super violent

Taking someone out looks like tremendous fun, because it doesn't hold back. Just a couple of the takedowns we've seen so far have included stabbing your foes repeatedly in the face, and thrusting a shotgun into the midriffs of enemies – and then casually blasting their guts out.

All told, this could very well be the most brutally violent game in some time.

Take over the city

One of Mafia 3's most intriguing elements will be familiar to anyone who enjoyed Far Cry 4's feature of gaining control of bases across the map for your own ends. In the same vein, you can assault and assume control of the Italian mobs' many buildings, drug dens and hideouts which are scattered throughout the city. Although, a word of warning: when you do, retribution in the form of an unannounced drive-by and a barrage of hot lead is inevitable.

→ Mafia 3 is out spring 2016 on PS4 and Xbox One

Eating peanuts all day can be thirsty work, but this cheeky nelly took his search for refreshment to new levels of weirdness when he started drinking from a local commode.

The tusked toilet drinker was snapped by Carina Blofield, a visitor to the Elephant Sands Lodge in Botswana, where apparently herds regularly dip their trunks in to fill up at the lavatory due to the local watering hole being quite salty.

We doubt that Carina has a memory like an elephant, but something tells us she won't be forgetting this particular trip to the lavvy any time soon...

"I'M LIAM NEESON'S PUNCHING BAG... BUT HE BUYS ME A PINT AFTER!"

The Run All Night star's stunt double, Mark Vanselow, gives ZOO an insight into his life, his many broken bones and the rules of fighting with Hollywood's elite

H EY, MARK. HOW DOES SOMEONE GO ABOUT BECOMING LIAM NEESON'S STUNT DOUBLE?

Usually you'll get a call out of the blue and they'll invite five or 10 guys to come down to a set and right there on the spot they'll decide who makes the best double for an actor. I just seemed to fit the bill, I guess!

WHAT'S LIAM LIKE TO WORK WITH?

He's a natural when it comes to action scenes. He knows exactly where to stand, how to handle a weapon and how to throw a fake punch without hitting you on the nose – which, believe me, goes a long way to keeping stuntmen happy, I assure you.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN MISTAKEN FOR HIM IN THE STREET?

Yeah, it's happened a couple of times. The look on people's faces is priceless because it's normally from the back they see you, so they tap you on the shoulder, you turn around and they'll just be like, "Oh, sorry!" and walk off.

SO HAVE YOU AND LIAM EVER TRADED BLOWS?

We've tagged each other with a few punches in training! That's part and parcel of it though, because Liam's work ethic is amazing. He wants to train in between scenes and on his days off. He's a machine!

AND HOW IS IT GETTING PUNCHED ON HIS BEHALF?

Well, it's an absolute pleasure because Liam's a fantastic guy to work with. I wouldn't keep saying yes to getting clobbered if I didn't enjoy working with him – plus, he buys me a beer afterwards!

HAVE YOU GONE TOE-TO-TOE WITH ANYONE ELSE? Harrison Ford. He's the real deal like Liam and he does as much as he can. I worked with him on the last Indiana Jones movie and got to do a fight scene with him and, honestly, taking a punch from Ford was an all-time career high!

"GETTING PUNCHED BY HARRISON FORD WAS AN ALL-TIME CAREER HIGH!"

“LIAM NEESON?
HE’S A MACHINE!”

CAN YOU PUNCH BACK?

Not really, but you wouldn’t want to. Let’s say you’re up against some $20million actor and you’re tussling with him on the ground. If you break his nose, the whole movie shuts down. It’s very stressful.

ANY OTHER STRESSES?

Sometimes when working with

WHAT’S YOUR WORST INJURY?

Honestly, I’ve lost count. I’ve blown out both my ear drums, severed tendons, broken a couple of bones here and there. I just worked with a guy on a movie and he’s broken his leg in three places – so it can get pretty hairy now and again.

OUCH! HOW DANGEROUS CAN IT GET?

It can be life-threatening. We’ll lose some members of our community around the performers across the world, as there might be four languages on set and you’re trying to make sure they punch the right side of your face. Ultimately you don’t want them to get it wrong as that means another take – and another punch!

WHAT’S THE CRAZIEST STUNT YOU’VE PULLED?

It was on Seraphim Falls with Neeson, but in this scene I was doubling for Pierce Brosnan. They dropped me from a helicopter on a bungee rope 34ft up and I disappeared into a waterfall below.

globe from time to time and the job definitely still has that risk attached to it.

WE HOPE THEY PAY WELL?

Definitely! About 99 per cent of the time, we’re overpaid, but then that one per cent... well, there’s not enough money in the world. If you’re jumping off a building and something goes wrong, it’s either a long road to recovery or the end of the line.

Football Factory USA

MLS is trying to compete with European football so much now it seems it's even got its own hooligans. The tear-up between New York Red Bulls and New York City FC fans before their derby last weekend was very amateurish.

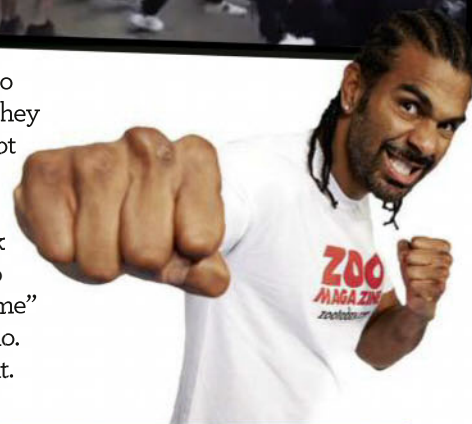

Seeing a group of blokes throwing sign hoardings and rubbish bags outside a deli and screaming "Who are ya?" is the last thing the fans would have been expecting when the clubs said they would be signing European legends Frank Lampard, Andrea Pirlo and, er, Shaun Wright-Phillips.

Football's still a young sport over there and they've still got a lot to learn when it comes to ultras and firms. Hopefully they can keep it that way, as it's not a nice aspect of the game.

There are better ways to support your club and knock your rivals, like the fans who unfurled the "retirement home" banner for Lampard and Pirlo. They got the banter just right.

EMAIL YOUR QUESTIONS FOR DAVID TO HAYEMAKER@ZOOTODAY.COM

IN NEED OF A HAYEMAKER THIS WEEK... FERRARI TORCHER

I couldn't believe a millionaire's son torched his Ferrari in Germany so he could replace it with the latest model. He's 20, has a £6,500-a-month allowance and owns 14 cars. Talk about not knowing you're born!

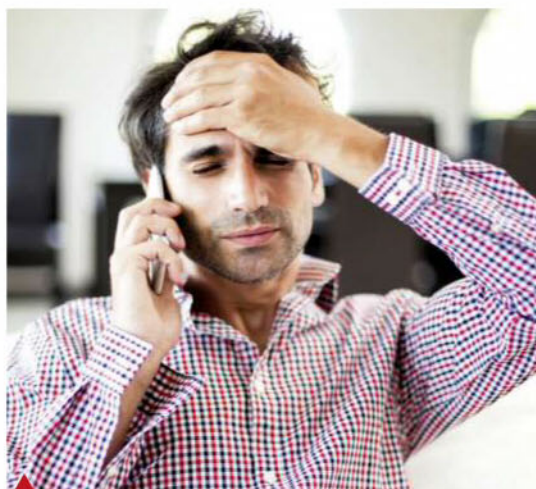

He was given a fine and 22 months' probation. I bet if he was a kid off a council estate who did it to his Ford Fiesta, they'd have thrown the book at him.

◀ To toké or not to toké

So William Shakespeare was apparently a weed smoker after they found pipes in his garden that contained traces of cannabis. That explains why I couldn't make head nor tail of his works at school.

No wonder he had such an interesting way with words. Perhaps you need to be stoned to understand it. This is the best story of the week: it vindicates some of my exam results!

▲ On hold

BT set a new waiting time record after keeping a customer on hold for 14 hours and 31 minutes! That's outrageous, but not as much as the fact some bloke stayed on the line for 14 hours.

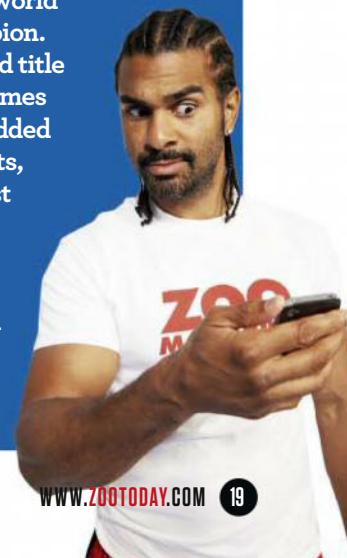

He was calling to cancel his contract, but BT say he should have received a message saying the department was closed. It must be a new method to retain customers: keep them on hold so long they give up and don't actually go through with the cancellation.

ASK DAVID!

Would you swap your world title for an Olympic Gold medal?

PHILIP CUNNINGHAM, Herts
No! Audley Harrison has an Olympic Gold medal and I beat him, so that'll do for me. He never knocked out anyone who was a world champion. A world title belt comes with added benefits, not just a pat on the back and an MBE.

The doc's not in

Last week I was surprised by the fuss over Jose Mourinho's criticism of his medical team at Chelsea, including team doctor Eva Carneiro. He might be taking it too far banning her from the stadium and training sessions, and even the team hotel, but I can see his point.

She should know better than anybody that footballers go down at the drop of a hat and would be rolling around on the floor even if somebody breathed on them. Not that Jose's players are particularly fond of that kind of gamesmanship...

*I've even got

drives the new MX-5!

Bang for your bucks!

The fourth generation Mazda MX-5 is big fun on a small budget

Did you know, the original Mazda MX-5 was designed to drive, handle and even smell like a classic British sports car when it was launched in 1989?

Well, Mazda's experts must have been on the right scent, because it went on to become the world's best-selling two-seater sports car of all time.

The latest generation is arguably better still, shedding 100kg over its predecessor and shrinking in size to ensure it remains the tiny bundle of fun that won it plaudits in the first place.

Two engines are available from launch, a 1.5-litre unit that develops 129bhp or a 2.0-litre version that kicks out 158bhp. Both are brilliant, but for us, the smaller number provided the most thrills on our twisting test drive.

Although the 2.0-litre offered more shove through the gears, the fizzy little 1.5 just begged to be thrashed and proved powerful enough to have the rear wheels spinning – if doughnuts and big skids tickle your fancy.

It's pretty ace inside too, with an optional Bose sound system implanting speakers in the headrest, and a 7.0-inch touch screen taking care of navigation and infotainment on mid-range models.

There are very few cars out there that offer both kicks and smashing styling for less than £20,000, but the new MX-5 is most certainly one of them. And it smells bloody lovely, too.

Vauxhall Corsa VXR (£18,245)

Vauxhall's latest miniature hot hatch packs real track-day tech into a tidy little package: Frequency Selective Damping to reduce body roll, a tuned 1.6-litre turbo engine that kicks out more than 200bhp and real Recaro race seats to make you really feel the part.

Volkswagen Polo GTI (£18,900)

A brilliant 1.8-litre TSI that develops nearly 190bhp powers this ferocious little pocket rocket. The sports suspension and XDS electronic differential lock means it handles like a car possessed and it fits in the tightest of parking spaces. An almost faultless all-rounder.

Caterham Seven 270 (£19,995)

There's no radio, the wipers barely work and the seats will shatter spines, but the Caterham 270 is one of the most visceral driving experiences out there. A new 1.6-litre Ford engine propels it from 0-60mph in five seconds, while an optional R pack readies it for racing.

Vacation

If puerile comedy isn't your bag (by that, we mean Neil sh*tting himself in Inbetweeners 2 didn't make you howl) give this a swerve in favour of Mission: Impossible. Those with a sense of humour (and nostalgia) are in for a treat.

Rusty (Ed Helms) is head of the dysfunctional Griswolds. His wife (Christina Applegate) is bored to death and their sons hate each other. So, what better way to bring the rabble closer than a road trip across the US to hit theme park Walley World... in a ridiculous car?

Highlights include Rusty's awkward encounter with a well-endowed Chris Hemsworth, and a diversion to some "freshwater" springs. If you don't crack a grin at this National Lampoon off-shoot, consider yourself officially dead inside. ★★★★★

DVD!

Child 44

At a grim outpost in 1950s Soviet Russia, a disgraced secret policeman (Tom Hardy) and his wife (Noomi Rapace) join forces with Gary Oldman's general to capture a serial killer who preys on young boys.

With yet another new accent to add to his repertoire, Hardy is incredible as MGB agent Leo Demidov in this powerful thriller, where he and Oldman complement each other spectacularly as an unf**kwithable duo on a mission to do right. ★★★★★

FILM!

North v South

Rivalries are at the core of everything British (Froch vs Groves, United vs Liverpool, Peppa Pig vs Rastamouse...), but this film – which focuses on the deep-rooted paranoia of rival gangs – is a little more serious than that.

In the middle, two star-crossed lovers must hide their relationship or risk full-blown gang warfare.

OK, it's basically Romeo And Juliet but some quality performances make this a decent thriller. ★★★★★

The Man From U.N.C.L.E.

Had things been different, Tom Cruise's Mission: Impossible this summer would have been to get the public interested in a film adaptation of a TV show cancelled in 1968. As it turns out, him pulling out of the lead role due to a scheduling conflict with filming for the new M:I movie, makes this 60s Cold War spy reboot even better.

US secret serviceman Napoleon Solo (Henry Cavill) – suave and morally dubious – is forced to team up with KGB hardnut Illya Kuryakin (Armie Hammer) and female mechanic Gaby Teller (Alicia Vikander) to stop a nuclear bomb falling into the wrong hands. What Guy Ritchie's film lacks in high-tech gadgets and death-defying stunts, it makes up for with tongue-in-cheek humour and “blink-and-you’ll-miss-’em” cameos (try to spot David Beckham – we didn't).

Added together, it's 2015's top guilty pleasure. ★★★★★

Hot List

Glassland

When a poor Dublin taxi driver (Jack Reynor) is forced to take a shady side job to pay for costly rehab at a private clinic for his alcoholic mum (Toni Collette), he has to face some grim realities. Also starring Will Poulter (who is, fortunately, only in it for a maximum of 20 minutes), it's not exactly an uplifting piece of cinema, but if it's hard-hitting you're after, look no further. ★★★★★

Run All Night

It's friend-turned-foe as ex-Irish mob enforcer Jimmy Conlon (Liam Neeson) has to kill Danny Maguire, his old boss and best friend's son. A drug deal goes wrong as Danny is found at his house by Mike Conlon (Jimmy's son and limo driver) and witnesses the murder of Albanian drug dealers. So Jimmy protects his son from the Mob he used to work for in this action-packed thriller. ★★★★★

DVD!

The Strypes Little Victories

The Irish Mod quartet are back with a bang for their second album. Taking a slight step away from the garage blues roots that earned these teenagers their, er, stripes, it's proof that they've still got it. I Need To Be Your Only is the best track by a country mile, but with dirty bass galore, it's a solid investment. ★★★★★

MUSIC!

The Fratellis Eyes Wide, Tongue Tied

Most famous for their anthem Chelsea Dagger, the Scottish rockers are back. And this time they're ditching the raucous (and somewhat embarrassingly addictive when drunk) catchy pop, for mellow mood music. There's nods to Motown on tracks like Dogtown, but it's numbers such as Desperate Guy that are reload-worthy. ★★★★★

A QUICK WORD WITH...

WILL FERRELL AND KEVIN HART

HI, BOTH! HOW DID GET HARD COME ABOUT?

WILL FERRELL This was an idea our company developed. I can't take credit, because it came from the genius mind of Adam McKay (producer). We had been talking about an idea like this for years. He always had the idea of, "Imagine, for whatever reason, getting the information that in 30 days you were going to prison, how would you react?" I thought that would be a really funny premise. When we started going through the list of who it would be fun to be paired with, we were like, "Kevin Hart, he's so funny". We had never done anything with him, and it was one-stop shopping, fortunately.

KEVIN HART When the name Will Ferrell was thrown at me...

WF You said no, be honest! KH Ha, no! I said, "What's the idea?" Then Adam jumped on the phone with me - it happened that fast - so I was thrilled. I loved the idea instantly.

WHAT WOULD YOU HAVE DONE IF YOU EVER GOT THAT CALL, KEVIN?

KH Essentially, we're two guys who could in no way, shape or form make it in that prison life. WF Yeah, in that environment, the only way we could survive is if other people happened to spare us because they liked us, our movies and entertainment.

KH Yeah. I need a crew. I need to go in with all my friends. I'm going to frame my friends so they can go with me!

YOU'VE KNOWN EACH OTHER FOR A WHILE, BUT WHAT WAS IT LIKE TO WORK TOGETHER?

KH It was a great thing.

WF There were so many times when Kevin would say, "You know what you should say? This would be really funny" and vice-versa. So that made it easy.

WAS THERE A MOMENT WHEN ONE OF YOU THREW OUT A LINE AND YOU CORPSED?

WF It happened on day one.

KH There's a scene where Darnell's in a car with James and James has recreated a prison riot and gets stabbed in his head.

WF Darnell's going to drive him home to his house.

KH To Darnell's house - because his wife is a nurse. So, in the car, I'm saying, "Just stay with me, man, stay with me." And he's getting delirious. He's saying, "Sorry, dad!" "What? Sorry, dad!"

WF Kevin just has to play along in the scene and act like he's my dad saying, "You're OK, son."

WF The hardest scene I had to do was when Darnell converted my tennis court into the prison yard. And he recreates what it's like to be in the yard and all the characters you're going to meet - from the Hispanic gang leader, to this person to that person - and he's playing all the parts.

And it was just one take, so I couldn't laugh during any of it. I didn't know what he was going to say, and just had to react honestly and somehow keep track of all these characters - I didn't know how he was keeping track, but he was having conversations with himself. That was amazing.

KH Oh my God! It was so funny. His reactions - it was great chemistry. At the end of the day, you can't write chemistry. You can only hope other actors or actresses get you there and that you come off real or genuine. We got there, and it was very fun.

“I COULDN’T WAIT TO STRIP OFF!”

HOLLYOAKS FOR BEING TOO WILD!

Hollyoaks Stephanie Davis sacked for partying too hard? Clubbing, drinking and wild nights out revealed on secret Instagram

IN THE NEWS!

ON THE SHOW!

ABOUT!

Seriously hot Scouser Stephanie Davis was a fixture in Hollyoaks for five years, as waitress Sinead O'Connor. But in July, just four months after signing a year-long deal to keep her on the Channel 4 soap, her long relationship with the show came to an end and she was written out with immediate effect.

Rumours of parties and drunken nights have emerged as potential reasons behind her removal, with the star even saying leaving the show was a “huge weight off my shoulders”.

Only now has she laid her cards on the table to reveal the true reasons for her departure – as well as presenting us exclusively with her first hot lingerie shoot...

HEY, STEPHANIE. HAVE YOU ENJOYED YOUR AMAZING DEBUT ZOO SHOOT?

I've always wanted to do a few sexy lingerie shoots but being in a soap was busy work so I didn't have the time. I'm really happy at the moment and I'd love to strip off for you all again!

“Everybody has to be a little crazy at some point”

but you can't always have them when you've been on a show for that long because of continuity. You'll be seeing plenty more of mine in the future.

SO, YOU DON'T REGRET EXITING THE SHOW?

It was ultimately my choice to leave! I just walked and then the producers told me if I didn't come back they'd have no option but to terminate my contract, but that it was my choice. I regret the way it ended – I probably should've gone about it in a better way, but I was desperate for a break. AND THEN THE STORIES EMERGED OF YOUR PARTY GIRL REPUTATION...

I've always had fun and when I started the show I did like to party, but I'm just like any normal 22-year-old and I'm sure everyone is the same as they're growing up – everybody has to be 18 and a little crazy at some point. The drunken thing was there for people to believe if they wanted to but I know people in the industry know me for what I really am. ➔

WHAT ARE YOU ACTUALLY LIKE ON A NIGHT OUT?

It depends who I'm out with, but I just love a laugh and a bit of banter. I'm always on the dance floor having a boogie. I think I'm like Beyoncé when I'm out: I love getting down and having a good skank – I've no idea what I really look like, though.

WHERE ELSE WILL YOU BE TAKING YOUR CAREER POST-HOLLYOAKS?

My passion has always been music, so I've been working with a few record labels and hopefully I'll be in the studio soon and then I can look at releasing some tracks in the new year. I've written some really good music and the only other person I know to make the jump from soaps is Kylie Minogue – so let's try to do that!

HOW ABOUT GIVING THE JUNGLE OR BIG BROTHER HOUSE A GO?

It would be amazing to do either – I've always loved both shows and would love to have the chance to challenge myself and show the public what I'm really like.

HOW ABOUT MAKING THE JUMP FROM HOLLYOAKS TO HOLLYWOOD?

Nathalie Emmanuel did it with Game Of Thrones and has been really big in America, but I've seen so many people leave soaps and never work again so I need to do it the right way. I've had some talks but I don't want to jinx anything!

THANKS, STEPHANIE. WITHOUT YOU IN IT, DO YOU THINK HOLLYOAKS HAS LOST ITS SEX APPEAL?

We used to have such a fun-loving and sexy cast with me, Jennifer Metcalfe and Gemma Merna - we even did a really hot calendar for you all to enjoy. But that's not to say Hollyoaks still isn't sexy!

JACK WHITEHALL

"I had to teabag a swan!"

As The Bad Education Movie hits screens this week, joker Jack talks Cornish Bravehearts, cross-dressing and being dropped from Frozen...

H EY, JACK. DID YOU EVER EXPECT TO SEE YOURSELF AND BAD EDUCATION ON THE BIG SCREEN?

Definitely not! I didn't even think we'd get another series when we first wrote it. Being made into a film is actually mad. I've always said that the best way to get any kind of acting work is to write a part for yourself!

HOW DOES IT TRANSLATE ON TO THE BIG SCREEN?

Well, it's bigger and bolder. Actually it's outrageous: the jokes alone would never have been allowed on the BBC. The film starts off in the Anne Frank museum where my character gets spiked with magic mushrooms and ends up thinking Anne Frank wants to escape. So there's a huge chase scene where he's running through the streets of Amsterdam with Anne under his arm. Oh, and then I teabag a swan.

SORRY?

We had to use a real swan and that was terrifying. I was actually quite intimidated because the experts told me it could break a child's arm and this [points below his belt] is just like a child's arm. Some real damage could have been done.

Bad Education* is back!

WAS IT GREAT TO GET THE ORIGINAL CAST BACK TOGETHER?

It was awesome to get everyone back involved for the film. Mathew Horne and Harry Enfield return and have their own separate plot where they drive down to Cornwall in a camper van to rescue me. They did so much that I wasn't involved in – so the first time I saw it was in the editing suite. I couldn't stop howling with laughter.

HOW DID YOU MANAGE TO KEEP ALL OF THIS A SECRET?

My biggest worry was talking about it. I've done it before when I had a part in Frozen. I told everyone about it and they cut me from the film. At least I can't get cut from this film. I'll definitely be in it.

WE'VE HEARD YOU HAD A SLIGHT ZIP WIRE MALFUNCTION DURING FILMING...

There's a part where I go on England's longest zip wire at the Eden Project and before I go, the kids pull my trousers down and push me off. As I'm flying through the air with my trousers around my ankles, the wind changes direction and, just like Boris Johnson, I got stuck in the middle. We didn't close the Eden Project so there was a load of Japanese tourists taking photographs as I was dangling there with my arse out. My bollocks feature quite heavily. I don't know if that is a selling point or not?

Jack lets it all hang out on the zip wire!

YOU'RE JUST LUCKY THEY SURVIVED THE SWANS! HOW DID CORNWALL REACT TO ALL OF YOUR ON-SET ANTICS?

Everyone was actually very welcoming. A part of the plot is about Cornish separatism and a group of people who want Cornwall to be its own country. We were basically flying their flag, like Cornish Bravehearts. I'm hoping I don't end up like Mel Gibson – without a head or shouting at my ex-girlfriend down the phone!

IS THIS YOUR CHANCE TO CRACK AMERICA?

This definitely isn't my James Corden moment – in fact this film will play really badly out there! It's got zero appeal for them because it's so British. I think we've taken the bullet and made it just for the Brits – even if that sounds very Ukip.

FINALLY, WHAT WAS THE WORST SCHOOL TRIP YOU EVER WENT ON?

I went to Hampton Court and because I went to an all boys' school, I was the one who ended up dressed like Anne Boleyn in a corset and a dress. I've had to suppress that memory 'til now.

It's likely you'll recognise the Essex stunner that is Lucy Turner. After all, she's a #ZOOTwitties regular, so can often be seen gracing the pages of your favourite mag.

And, judging by her top performance in our Hot 101 countdown (a solid debut 41st), she's clearly one of your favourites, too. So we didn't hesitate at signing up the lovely Lucy for her first ZOO shoot.

Armed with nothing more than a bed, some curtains and some very sexy lingerie, Lucy delivers a jaw-dropping performance. Let's hope her career is as long as her home town's famous pier...

HEY, LUCY! HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE ON YOUR FIRST-EVER ZOO SHOOT?

It's really exciting! I've always wanted to shoot for ZOO and now I'm finally here – it's like a dream come true!

OUR PLEASURE. IF WE GOT ONE OF YOUR CLOSE MATES TO DESCRIBE YOU, WHAT WOULD THEY SAY?

I'd hope they'd say I'm a caring, confident and outgoing person, but they'd probably tell you about the time I once stripped off and streaked around the pool while we were on holiday.

THERE ANY SIMILAR TALES FROM THAT TRIP?

On the first night me and my friends got very drunk and decided it would be a good idea to have a shower before we went to bed. Instead of wasting time we all jumped in together.

STEAMY! ANY MORE?

I ended up with a fat lip after I drunkenly walked into a lamp post. It was so embarrassing and I spent the whole holiday trying to cover it up.

WE KNOW YOU'RE A BIG LOVE ISLAND FAN. ARE YOU WATCHING EX ON THE BEACH?

Of course! It's way crazier than Love Island and I really enjoyed it when it was last on. I think this series will get really intense. I'd actually love to go on the show one day!

HOW WOULD YOU IMPRESS?

Before I went to Ibiza I bought some really hot bikinis with little mesh cut-outs that give everyone a nice revealing tease – just enough for people to be interested in before my fun side comes out.

Well, all my family actually support West Ham, but I really like Arsenal.

WE BET THAT WENT DOWN WELL...

I know! Maybe I should go back to West Ham as they beat Arsenal, but I've already posted photos of me in an Arsenal shirt so I wouldn't want to upset anyone!

MEET THE BRIT FIGHTING ISIS

Steve Kerr was like any ordinary British bloke going about his daily life: working a regular day job in a warehouse, occasionally flicking through the news to take in world events. But then, something changed.

"It was December 2014 when I first heard about Daesh [the Kurdish term for Islamic State] and their atrocities against the Kurds," Steve begins. At this time, Islamic State militants were rampaging through Iraq and Syria, wreaking havoc on the peaceful locals. This caught his attention and compelled him to leave his family and life in Northampton to join the Kurdish efforts to stop the ISIS onslaught.

Here he tells ZOO what it's like taking on fearless fighters on the frontline...

The journey to Iraq

"After seeing the initial atrocities, I found a few

Facebook posts from the Lions Of Rojava [otherwise known as the YPG] appealing for the help of ex-military in their fight against ISIS in Kurdistan. I'd spent six years in the Royal Green Jackets, so I felt like I had something to offer the Kurdish people.

"I got in touch and they expressed their interest in me coming over. They gave me a telephone number for someone who runs a safe house for foreign fighters in Sulaymaniyah and was told to phone them when I arrived at the airport in Iraq. From there, I was smuggled across the border into Syria – which wasn't a problem until I had a nine-hour march to Kobani with 90lb of gear on my back!"

Kurdish hospitality

"The Kurds are some of the most kind and gracious people I've ever met. There were around 150 foreigners from America, Germany, Italy, France and Spain and they won't take a penny for food or even a haircut.

"When we got time off, I tried to relax with them as much as possible. They were always feeding us, but it's very basic, mostly just tomatoes, bread and rice. If we were lucky, we would get some chicken and potatoes.

"The YPG's tactics leave a lot to be desired, though. The majority of their fighters are volunteers but come from a non-military background, who receive just 45 days of training – most of which is ideology to prepare them for the battle against the Daesh."

Steve and the Zagros sniper rifle!

An ISIS weapons cache

The battle

"The skill levels of the Daesh are very similar to the YPG, but they fight to the death: they really don't care. The YPG was set up as a defence unit and will never launch an attack against them, so it's constantly one step forward and three steps back.

"As a unit, we became quite resourceful at creating rather impressive weapons. My favourite was the Zagros, which was basically a sniper rifle made using the barrel of a heavy-duty machine gun. It packs a punch and has a range of around 3,000 metres.

"We didn't often get close to the enemy and would normally engage them at around 600 to 700 metres. Most of the fighting is done with anti-aircraft cannons or mortar rounds.

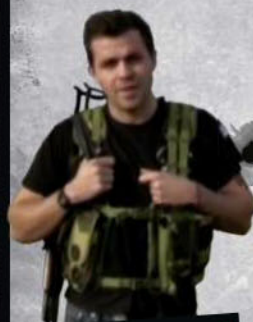

Sometimes they managed to sneak up close enough for us to use our rifles, but soon fled. The closest reported sighting I heard of was 10 metres."

The journey home

"The YPG sent me home for specialist treatment on my left eye after some shrapnel became lodged in it when a mortar round struck five metres away from my position. I've got little vision at the moment, which made me useless as I shoot left-handed.

"I've heard of Brits who have travelled back and the police have brought them in at the airport for eight hours of questioning, but that hasn't put me off. I'll be back in a few months when my eye has fully recovered."

HE'S NOT THE ONLY BRIT FIGHTING ISIS

KOSTA SCURFIELD

The ex-Royal Marine became the first Briton to be killed fighting ISIS after he was hit by a mortar in the Syrian city of Al-Qamishli.

MAGER GIFFORD

Quit his lucrative job as a banker to join YPG to show the Kurds were not in the fight alone and not forgotten by the West.

JIM ATHERTON

Sold his Sierra Cosworth to raise funds for his trip. A member of Dwekh Nawsha despite having no military experience.

“We might hire Sir Alex!”

We step into the boardroom with the Class Of '92 to hear about their stewardship of non-league Salford City...

HI GENTS! THESE ARE EXCITING TIMES AT YOUR CLUB RIGHT NOW – CHAMPIONS, AND GOING FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH. YOU’LL HAVE ALL THE MANCHESTER UNITED FANS COMING DOWN TO SALFORD CITY SOON... RYAN GIGGS Ha, ha! We’ve already had a few, which is good. Of course we try to make the best of us being involved, and if it brings more fans to the ground, then so be it. We’ve seen a bigger rise in attendance than any other club in the country over the past season, from 150 to around 800 fans on match days!

PAUL SCHOLES Sir Alex hasn’t been down yet! He could take a session if we asked him! SHOULDN’T DAVID BECKHAM BE A MEMBER OF THE BOARDROOM TOO?

RG We did speak to him, but at the time he was busy trying to get his MLS franchise idea off the ground, so the timing wasn’t great. We understood it, but it was a shame.

WHOSE IDEA WAS IT TO BUY SALFORD CITY FC IN THE FIRST PLACE?

RG Like most ideas it came from Gary Neville. We wanted something we could do 15 to 20 years after we finished our careers. In coaching you don’t typically last that long whereas, as an owner, you can. We spent our childhood playing football in Salford so it was a no-brainer really. SPEAKING OF NOT LASTING LONG IN COACHING, HOW HARD WAS IT TO SACK YOUR MANAGER LAST SEASON?

PS Very difficult, especially after our great start to the season. But things weren’t right in the dressing room, and the players started taking over a little bit from the staff. Winning promotion has shown us we made the right choice.

ARE YOU WORKING ON DEVELOPING YOUR OWN CLASS OF '92 AT SALFORD?

RG One thing we plan to build and develop is an academy, and have young players come through. That’s what we hope to do if it’s sustainable, and the way to do that is to bring players through who believe in the way we play.

IS IT ALL ABOUT PLAYING THE MAN UNITED WAY?

NICKY BUTT We were brought up with continuity from Sir Alex Ferguson bringing us through the ranks and it was a real family unit. We have the same approach with the players we bring in so we’re not just thinking about this season but players who can be here in three years’ time.

MUST BE A LONG WAY FROM YOUR ROLE AT THE UNITED ACADEMY, NICKY?

NB It’s great working with Louis van Gaal and I’m just adding to what I’ve already learnt from all the other unbelievable managers I’ve had in my career, such as Sir Alex and Sir Bobby Robson. But at least if everything goes pear-shaped, I’ve

Salford City FC factfile

- Founded in 1940, Salford City are the only semi-professional side in the city of Salford
- They ply their trade in the Northern Premier League Premier Division, the seventh tier of English football
- Their first major trophy came last season when they were crowned Northern Premier League Division One North champions
- The Class Of '92 took over the club in July 2014 and then sold a 50 per cent stake to Singapore billionaire and Valencia owner Peter Lim
- They also sacked the manager in January 2015 and replaced him with a two-man team who won 15 of their last 17 matches always got Salford City to fall back on!

DID PHIL NEVILLE TAKE THE JOB IN SPAIN JUST TO GET AWAY FROM HAVING TO SIT IN CLUB MEETINGS WITH YOU LOT?

PS Ha, ha. That's fine, we'll probably win more games now! He can't be as massively involved as he was at the start but he's still always on the phone giving out advice.

SO WHO WILL YOU BE SUPPORTING IF YOU DRAW MANCHESTER UNITED IN THE FA CUP?

RG That's a good question. A replay would be nice! That would be unbelievable, but it's hard to imagine now so I'm not going to say.

On the touchline

"After the way last season finished with a 6-1 reverse at Stoke, there was a lot of talk about whether Brendan Rodgers would still be at Anfield for this campaign. Instead, the coaching staff was replaced. Rodgers is favourite for the sack race, but I don't see it. He'll have at least six to seven months to prove himself."

PICS: Offside, Action Images, Getty Images, PA Photos, Alamy

Pass!

In the nets

"Simon Mignolet has had his struggles and they have been very well documented, but after he was dropped and came back into the side last season, he has been outstanding. I wouldn't change him for anybody outside of Chelsea's Thibault Courtois and Manchester United's David de Gea."

Niggling problem!

Centre of defence

"Martin Skrtel could have easily replaced Steven Gerrard as captain. He needs a good partner, so one of Dejan Lovren or Mamadou Sakho need to make that left centre-back berth their own. Lovren got the nod at the start of the season, but at £20m and £18m respectively, they've not been anywhere near good enough."

Fully
fit!

Full-back

"They've recruited well. Joe Gomez has come up from the Championship but is a strong boy and looks very promising, while Nathaniel Clyne has been the best right-back in the country for a while now, so he was a great acquisition."

Critical condition!

Middle of the park

"My biggest worry about this team is in the centre of midfield. James Milner has a big role to play because of his experience, but would you fancy him, Jordan Henderson, Emre Can and Joe Allen over Santi Cazorla, Mesut Ozil, Francis Coquelin and Aaron Ramsey? They could get overrun by the top sides in this area."

Road to recovery!

Up front

"Replacing the goals of Luis Suarez and Daniel Sturridge was too much for Rickie Lambert and Mario Balotelli. With a proven goalscorer like Christian Benteke coming in, Adam Lallana should kick on now. Roberto Firmino also looks like he'll be a hit. He won't be frightened by the physical aspect of the league."

JOE ROOT

ZOO's new favourite sportsman!

ZOO reveals how this summer's Ashes hero has risen to No1 in the Best Bloke In Britain rankings

PICS: Action Images, Getty Images, PA Photos, Rex Features

Dropped 18 months ago during England's shambolic white wash in Australia, Joe Root's rise up the rankings to become the No1 Test batsman in world cricket is symbolic of England's turnaround in fortune to regain the urn.

If new-look England are a breath of fresh air, Root is a gale force wind, leading the series in runs and off-field banter...

THURSDAY
20 AUGUST

The Ashes
Fifth Test

Sky Sports Ashes, 10am

Social secretary

It's not just on the pitch where young Root delivers, he's just as important in the social domain as well. A matador outfit went down a storm when he dressed up to host a quiz on a pre-Ashes trip to Spain, and he never has an issue leading the squad in a celebratory sing-song...

Man of the people

Despite finishing the Fourth Test at 11.40am, Root hung back until 10pm to savour the victory. Seeing the fans do the same blew him away. "It was humbling to see how many people stayed to enjoy the celebrations. It's fair to say I've never been in so many selfies!"

Good laugh

When England's players let their hair down after sealing the Ashes, Root was leading from the front. From soaking Sky's Ian Ward, to donning a mask to do his impression of England legend Bob Willis (which he's promised to bring back after some work improving it!), he loves a laugh. He even couldn't stifle a giggle when captain Alastair Cook caught one square in mid-wicket.

No job too small

If you think fame has gone to his head, think again. After brother Billy spent the Fourth Test running around with water for England, Joe returned the favour by using the extra time off from whipping the Aussies to carry out 12th man duties for his brother's Sheffield Collegiate CC game.

On your marks...

Get set for the fastest race of all time!

Forget Beijing 2008. Forget London 2012. Here is why this month's World Championship 100m will leave every other sprint finale eating its dust...

Fast & furious

Having run under 9.8 seconds four times this season, Justin Gatlin is not only the fastest man right now, but he's also riled Usain Bolt, saying the Jamaican is running scared. Beijing will host their first head-to-head this year – and it's gonna be explosive.

"Gatlin has been saying a lot of things," says Bolt. "He's running fast times and he's ready. It should be exciting!"

Gold standard

The match-up is about more than just Gold medals and the title of world's fastest man: the future of the sport is at stake.

After serving two separate doping bans, Gatlin has to be beaten by Bolt to protect the integrity of the competition, according to sprint veteran Darren Campbell.

"What's important is the photo we see at the end has Bolt's hand rising up in victory. If it's Gatlin, I don't know where it leads us."

Rapid line-up!

With four US and four Jamaican entrants – plus two Team GB runners – having gone under 10 seconds, the field is set to be scarily fast.

Even China has a sub-10 second sprinter in Su Bingtian, the first-ever Asian man to break that barrier.

This Final will potentially have the fastest line-up in 100m history.

Even the track is quick!

The "Bird's Nest" in Beijing is a notoriously fast track, having been designed with a running surface that rebounds more energy from the forward and backward motion of the athlete's feet.

It was the venue where Usain Bolt ran a world record-breaking 9.69s with no favourable wind in 2008 – after slowing down to celebrate as he crossed the finish line with his shoelaces untied...

And here's the Brit looking to beat them all!

As he heads out to Beijing, British speedster James Dasaolu talks to ZOO about joining the sub-10 club and chasing down Usain Bolt...

JAMES, YOU'RE BRITAIN'S SECOND-FASTEST MAN OF ALL TIME. DO YOU HAVE THAT LINE ON YOUR BUSINESS CARD?

Ha ha. I'm afraid to disappoint you, but I don't.

YOU SHOULD! WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS LIKE IN THE SUB-10 CLUB?

Joining the sub-10 club was one of many goals I have in racing, so it was great to achieve it and run 9.91 seconds. The main benefit for me is that I was able to get onto the Diamond League circuit and just get in the bigger races against higher quality athletes.

YOU WON EUROPEAN GOLD IN 2014. CAN YOU COMPLETE THE HAT-TRICK WITH THE WORLDS THIS YEAR AND THE OLYMPICS IN 2016?

Every athlete wants to win medals and I have done so at European level. Naturally, the next step up would be to grab a medal on the world stage. I always remain process driven on running my best possible race, so we'll see.

TEAM GB'S CHIJINDU UJAH AND ADAM GEMILI HAVE ALSO RUN SUB-10 SECONDS. IF IT WASN'T FOR USAIN BOLT, WOULD THIS BE A GOLDEN ERA OF BRITISH SPRINTING?

Regardless of Usain Bolt, it still is a golden era in British sprinting. The sub-10 and sub-20 runners we have are young and still have more to give.

WHAT DOES IT REALLY FEEL LIKE LINING UP AGAINST BOLT?

It's always an honour facing the fastest man in history, but you can't focus on your opponents. So when I'm on the track, I'm only thinking about what I have to do and my own lane.

ONCE THE CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE OVER, WHAT IS THE BANNED TREAT YOU'RE MOST LOOKING FORWARD TO?

Definitely doughnuts!
